

Early Journal Content on JSTOR, Free to Anyone in the World

This article is one of nearly 500,000 scholarly works digitized and made freely available to everyone in the world by JSTOR.

Known as the Early Journal Content, this set of works include research articles, news, letters, and other writings published in more than 200 of the oldest leading academic journals. The works date from the mid-seventeenth to the early twentieth centuries.

We encourage people to read and share the Early Journal Content openly and to tell others that this resource exists. People may post this content online or redistribute in any way for non-commercial purposes.

Read more about Early Journal Content at <http://about.jstor.org/participate-jstor/individuals/early-journal-content>.

JSTOR is a digital library of academic journals, books, and primary source objects. JSTOR helps people discover, use, and build upon a wide range of content through a powerful research and teaching platform, and preserves this content for future generations. JSTOR is part of ITHAKA, a not-for-profit organization that also includes Ithaka S+R and Portico. For more information about JSTOR, please contact support@jstor.org.

Questions and Comments.

"Most of us enjoy having questions put to us,—because they set us to thinking and investigating." . . . "The things that have interested you are likely to interest others, and one need not be a skillful writer to tell of the things which have interested him." . . . "Send in your questions to the Editor." These are a few phrases from President Ware's "Letter to Members"—printed in Vol. II, page 58-62 of this JOURNAL.

In accordance with the spirit of this letter, which most members will find worth reading again, we are attempting to initiate this department which we hope the members will keep well filled. Send in your questions and the editor will answer them, or more probably, pass them on for someone else to answer. If necessary, we will scour the earth for the expert who is best equipped to tackle the problem. Then we will print question and answer together.

Then, if any member is not satisfied with the answer, send in your answer and comment.

Thus we shall hope to make the JOURNAL more truly what it is intended to be, a medium for the interchange of ideas and information. May we not expect that this will produce a stronger sense of personal acquaintance among the members, and greatly enhance the value of our association to each of us?

E. J. W.

American Fern Society

Members of the Society will be sorry to learn of the death of one of our members, Mr. Henry Dautun. Mr. Dautun had been especially interested in ferns and grasses. His herbarium was purchased by the Brooklyn